No Unoccupied Land.

Certain people always talk as if there was a vast amount of unoccupied land ready to be turned into wheat fields. As a matter of fact, nothing of the sort is the case. The land of the country is, roughly speaking, fully occupied, and if the farmer is to produce more wheat he must produce less of something else.—London Baker and Confectioner.

Art Treasures in South America.

Many pictures by Velasquez may still be resting unrecognized in South America, according to an art critic. The rough people, says he, who furnished the silver ingots, would yearn for presentments of the old country life and so early essays at its portrayal by Velasquez may still be slumbering in remote haciendas under the shadow of the Andes.

Children's Head Coverings.

In the orient, the children, who are permitted to grow up nearly nude, have their heads swathed in bandages which serve as a protection from the ardent sun. On the same principle in some hot countries babies' caps are heavily embroidered, or trimmed with fur, or, as in Japan, incrustated with flowers, leaves and tinsel.

The Benighted Heathen.

William Jennings Bryan, in an address at Lincoln, said: "Then we came to Madagascar. The Madagascar dealers who give short weight or sell impure articles go to prison for a year. But in more enlightened countries they would go to Palm beach or to Ormond."

Fantastic Snowflakes.

Snowflakes, when viewed under a microscope, are found to form regular figures, the most common shape being a star of six arms or points. In some cases the design, though perfectly regular, is extremely fantastic and beautiful.
